III.

DESCENDANTS OF JEDEDIAH STRONG OF COVENTRY, CT., SON OF ELDER JOHN STRONG, OF NORTHAMPTON.

8–9. iv. JEDEDIAH STRONG (son of Elder John Strong of Northampton and Abigail Ford) b. May 7, 1637, (and bapt. April 14, 1639), m. Nov. 18, 1662, Freedom Woodward, bapt. at Dorchester, Mass., in 1642 (dau. of Henry Woodward, afterwards of Northampton, and "one of the pillars of the church," there, and Elizabeth his wife). He was a farmer at Northampton until 1709, when at the age of 70 years and upwards he removed with his family to Coventry, Ct., where 24 years afterwards he d. May 22, 1733, aged 96; during the years 1677–8 & 9, he was paid 18 shillings a year for blowing the trumpet on Sunday to summon the people to church. His wife Freedom d. May 17, 1681, and he m. Dec. 19, 1681, for 2d wife Abigail Stebbins b. Sept. 6, 1660 (dau. of John Stebbins, of Northampton, and Abigail Bartlett — dau. of Robert and Anne Bartlett, of Hartford, and afterwards of Northampton). She d. July 15, 1689, and he m. Jan. 5, 1691–2, for 3d wife Mrs. Mary (Hart) Lee widow of John Lee, of Farmington, Ct., and dau. of Stephen Hart, of Farmington. He lived with his first wife 19 years, with his second 7, and with his third wife 9, and notwithstanding his three marriages spent 33 years as a widower, and 61 unmarried. His wife Mary d. Oct. 10, 1710, from the injury which she received the day previous, by the fall of the horse on which she was riding (on a pillion behind her husband), when just started well upon their way to Coventry, together, to visit their children. The record reads thus at Northampton: "Oct. 9, 1710, Jedediah Strong, and wife set out early in the morning to visit their children, at Coventry; but when they came against the Falls (at S. Hadley) among the broad smooth stones, the horse's feet slipped up and he fell flat on the off side and by the fall killed the woman: though she was not quite dead then, but had life in her until the next day — yet never spoke a word." He was constable in 1683.

[A few facts gleaned concerning the early history of the Woodward, Stebbins and Bartlett families, connected with this branch of the Strong family, are worth recording here.

I. Henry Woodward was a member of the Dorchester church in 1639, and removed to Northampton, in 1659. He came from Much Worton, Lancashire, Eng., and was "killed by lightning at the upper corn mill," April 7, 1683. He had 4 children: 1. Experience who m. Nov. 21, 1661, Medad Pomeroy. 2. Freedom (Mrs. Jedediah Strong). 3. Thankful who m. Dec. 18, 1662, John Taylor. 4. John.

He was "licensed to keep ordinary and sell wines and liquors," as reputable then as any other business, each year for several years successively (1665–81), during which time he regularly "entertained the court" which sat each year in Northampton.

II. John Stebbins was the son of Rowland Stebbins the settler, of Springfield, the original home of all the Stebbinses of America. The name was originally Stebbing. Rowland Stebbins came to this country in 1636, from the west of England, when 41 years old, having been born in 1594. He d. in Northampton, Dec. 4, 1671, aged 77. John Stebbins removed to Northampton, about 1656, where he d. March 7, 1679. He m. his wife, widow Ann Munden, at Springfield, March 14, 1646. She d. about 1656, and he m. Dec. 17, 1657, as his 2d wife, Abigail Bartlett (dau. of Robert and Anne Bartlett, of Hartford). ~~After his death she m. Dec. 28, 1681, Jedediah Strong~~. John Stebbins had by his two wives 16 children: By his first wife: 1. John Stebbins b. Jan. 28, 1647. 2. Thomas who d. early. 3. Edward. 4. Anne who d. early. 5. Benoni b. June 23, 1655. By second wife: 6. Samuel b. Jan. 21, 1658–9, m. Mary French. 7. Abigail b. Sept. 24, 1660, m. May 30, 1678, William Phelps. 8. Thomas (2d) b. May 6, 1662, m. Sept. 26, 1684, Elizabeth Wright and for 2d wife Dec. 17, 1701, Sarah Strong. 9. Hannah b. July 8, 1664, m. Nov. 5, 1679, John Sheldon. 10. Mary b. Sept. 10, 1666, m. Nov. 17, 1683, Thomas Strong, Jr. 11. Sarah b. June 4, 1668, m. Feb. 24, 1687, William Southwell. 12. Joseph b. Jan. 17, 1670, d. June 3, 1681. 13. Deborah b. March 5, 1672, m. about 1690, Benjamin Alvord. 14. Benjamin baptized May 3, 1674, m. Dec. 21, 1699, Mary Ashley of Westfield. 15. Rebecca b. Feb. 20, 1676, m. Nathaniel Strong. 16. Thankful b. May 11, 1678, m. in 1700, Jerijah Strong; see subsequent page.

III. Robert Bartlett father of Abigail (Bartlett) Stebbins was an early settler at Hartford, and removed to Northampton about 1655. He was slain by the Indians March 14, 1676, when they broke through the palisades into the village. His widow Anne d. July 3, 1676. He was a farmer, and his estate was appraised at £654.]

[3d Gen.]

14256–7. i. ELIZABETH STRONG (dau. of Jedediah and Freedom Strong) b. June 9, 1664, m. Sept. 16, 1684, Ebenezer Wright b. March 20, 1662–3 (son of Samuel Wright, Jr., slain at Northfield, Sept. 2, 1675, and Elizabeth Burt of Springfield whom he m. Nov. 24, 1653, and who m. for a 2d husband Nathaniel Dickinson of Hatfield). She d. Feb. 17, 1691–2. He m. for 2d wife Dec. 19, 1692, Hannah Hunt by whom he had eight children. They had one child:

14280. ii. ABIGAIL King b. in Hatfield Jan. 31, 1687.

[3d Gen.]

14260–1. iii. JEDEDIAH STRONG, JR., b. Aug. 7, 1667, m. Nov. 8, 1688, Abiah (also called Abijah) Ingersoll b. Aug. 24, 1663 (dau. of John Ingersoll first of Hartford then of Northampton, and afterwards of Westfield, Mass., and Abigail Bascom, his second wife). He was a farmer at Northampton until Aug. 24, 1696, when he removed to Lebanon, Ct., when there were but four white families in it. He was killed by Indians at Wood Creek, N. Y, Oct. 12, 1709, aged 42. She d. Nov. 20, 1732, aged 69. No one's name appears oftener on the early records of Lebanon, as a committee-man on various matters of public interest. The following letter written to his son Stephen (then aged 19), a few months previous to his death, will interest his descendants:

"Son Stephen:

"Hearty love to you, hoping you are well; as I am, blessed be God for it. I have nothing of news to write to you. I wrote a letter to your mother yesterday, and therein all the news I have: but yet I gladly take the opportunity to write a word to you, as a testification of my love to you. I hope you will be mindful of the advice I left you. Be tender of, and obedient to your mother. I hope you take care of affairs at home; they are but little in my thoughts; but I daily mind you, and God forbid that I should cease to pray for you daily. I want such opportunity for it as I had at home. Dear son, pray for yourself and for me also. Give my respects to your mother. What I here say to you, I herein say to the rest of my dear ones. Also my affectionate love to my dear daughter. Naught else.

I remain your affectionate father,

JEDEDIAH STRONG."

July 19, 1709.

Five of these children: Lydia, Peter, Abel, Hannah, and Reuben, died within ten days of each other of "the black throat distemper," as it was called. For an account of this scourge which began in 1734, and ravaged the country for several years, sweeping off children in large numbers, and sometimes obliterating in a few days large families of them, see Trumbull's Hist. of Connecticut, vol. ii, p. 137, etc. Lydia Strong d. Aug. 3, 1740; Hannah, Aug. 9; Peter, Aug. 12; Ruby Aug. 16; Abel, Aug. 23, 1740.

[Lebanon, Ct., has had a remarkable history. No town in the whole country has compared with it at all in the number of leading professional men that it has furnished to the nation. The reasons for such a marvellous fruitfulness in producing great and good men in a population so small, scattered and quiet, are worth finding out. To the author who has long admired the noble history of this little town they seem to be the following reasons combined: In the first place, the first settlers themselves who went there from 1695, onwards, for several years that "the worship of God might be there set up and the kingdom of Christ enlarged," were of a superior stock, the very best intellectual and religious material for "a new plantation" that Northampton, Norwich, etc., could furnish. Another fact in the case was, that the land at Lebanon was and is of a very superior quality, rewarding those who till it industriously in each generation with the means of providing generously for the higher wants of their families. But most of all must be taken into account the grand school privileges of Lebanon in its early history. In 1700, the town appropriated 200 acres of land for a school and many of the proprietors gave of their own lands also for the same purpose.—Rev. Joseph Parsons giving five acres of his land. In 1740 a grammar school was established by a vote of the town, and it became a school of great celebrity, having pupils from 9 out of the 13 states of which the Union was then composed, and sending large numbers of them in successive years to Harvard and Yale.

Here especially Nathan Tisdale, "Master Tisdale," as he has always been called, did a great work for his generation. He was b. in Lebanon, Sept. 19, 1732, and grad. at Harvard in 1749, æt. 17, and took charge of the grammar school from his graduation to his death for 37 years (1749–1786). He was a strict disciplinarian, most exact in his work, and exacting in his requisitions of the right style of effort on the part of his pupils. He was an artist in his high calling and loved art itself, and inspired his pupils with his own enthusiasm as a thinker, and worker. A noble procession of well trained minds came out from under his care for many long years to put their best endeavors to the advancement of the higher interests of their day. They were such as Jeremiah Mason, Zephaniah Swift, Col. John Trumbull, Gov. Jonathan Trumbull, Jr., Rev. Dr. Lyman, Judge Baldwin, and a host of others like them. Wherever any of the Strong Family trace back their lineage to Lebanon, Ct., let "Master Tisdale," be held in lasting honor for his noble ideas and efforts. And let any of the family who wish to do the utmost in their power for the lasting welfare of the towns or cities in which they live, do what they can for the promotion in permanent ways of the interests of the higher Christian education in them.]

S. A. of Vols., of the second army corps (Gen. Sumner). His only watchword as a scholar, teacher or soldier, was duty. When his fellow teachers and pupils expressed the fear on parting with him that they should never see his face again, he replied "I never think of that; I am persuaded that it is my duty to do what I can to save my country." In writing to them afterwards from camp he said, "I do not know that in all my life, I ever so truly desired and earnestly endeavored to have my heart right and my words and actions unexceptionable as since I came to this den of wickedness, the military camp of the Potomac." Again he says, "When I have been entering the crash of battle I have felt that prayer and faith have been the hands wherewith a soul clings to heaven and safety. I have learned to trust all hopes for this world and the next to him who died that I might live." He d. at New York Aug. 7, 1862, when on his way homewards.

He was an eminent advocate, famous not for his technical legal knowledge, but for his great tact and ingenuity, and wonderful resources of his own in the management of cases, and for his inspiring and magnetic powers of eloquent speech which was always more powerful than polished. He was district attorney of Tioga county, afterwards first judge of the County Court and member of the 29th Congress (1846–7). He had no children. Says his stepson of him, George Sidney Camp, Esq., of Owego, for many years his law-partner: "The second marriage of Judge Strong, though contracted when he was 70 years of age was equal to any marriage that I ever knew in the happiness that it afforded all concerned. He was one of the kindest hearted and most genial men that ever I knew, the best proof of which is that he was loved as a father by the children of former marriages in both of the families into which he married."

He was instinctively polite and free with both hand and heart everywhere, and remarkably frank and unreserved on all occasions and made alike warm friends and bitter enemies. He had an inexhaustible fund of good spirits at all times. He was a great reader rather than a close student. He was very tall, above six feet in stature, of dark complexion, high and prominent cheek bones, and a large mouth, and marked but interesting features. There is a fine portrait of him at Owego, by Bodle.

Wrestling was a favorite amusement with our Puritan forefathers. Many came at different times from the neighboring towns, and assembled in the ample courtyard of his house to witness wrestling matches appointed with him, in which he always came off victor. He would jump over a string as high as his head. Once during the Revolutionary war. he was chased by some British cavalry soldiers and stopped to put up some bars that were down in order to hinder them and heard one of them say — he was so near — "he might have killed that cuss as well as not, but he hated to see the great long fellow die." Schools were poor and books few in his early years, but in his after life he was very fond of reading. His wife Anna d. July 25, 1815, and he m. Benjamin Burch, he put up a log house and opened the first tavern in the town. In 1775, and '6, he was one of the council of safety chosen for Cumberland county, and was in 1776–7 a captain of a company of Rangers under Gen. Schuyler. He was several times chosen a member of the legislature of Vermont (1777, 8, and 9, and in 1782). Various town trusts and offices were often committed to him. In 1778–9, he built a saw-mill and grist-mill, which he kept in lively motion, together with his inn, and was a man whose heart and hands were at all times full of business. In 1804, when 81 years old and poor, he removed with his grandson, Benjamin Burch, Jr., to Argenteuil, Canada, near Montreal, where after two years he died, and his wife soon followed him to the grave. Many of his descendants of the name of Burch are said to reside there now. Captain John Strong m. twice. The name of his first wife it has not been possible to obtain. She d. at Woodstock, Vt., aged about 60, Jan. 15, 1784. He m. for a second wife, afterwards, widow Mary Hoisington. What children he had beyond two is unknown to the author.

15478– 9. 2. Freedom Strong b. in Hebron, Ct., Feb., 1747, m. in 1762, Richard English. Of their family but a meagre account has been gleaned, and that after much effort. The needed records are doubtless garnered safely somewhere; but hitherto the spot where they lie concealed has not been found. Could a little longer time be spared for the pursuit of further facts than the few scanty details which are here furnished, and which have very recently come to hand, the author doubts not that ample justice might be done to Capt. Strong's family history. Richard English and Freedom Strong, had 14 children. She d. Oct. 6, 1839.

15480– 1. (1.) Their daughter Esther m. Isaiah Daggett, of Conn.

and Temperance Phelps of Hebron (see subsequent page), a lady of vigorous mind who has helped me much in various ways in gathering up ancestral memories and traditions respecting her large branch of the family, wrote me under date of March 18, 1870, to this effect: that a few years since she was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Asenath (Strong) Claghorne (see subsequent page), her school teacher in early life, and a lady at the time of sound mind, remarkable memory and much intelligence, with her relative Miss Clarissa Ludden of Westhampton; and that as her aunt showed her some bed spreads marked Abigail Caverley Strong, with her own hand, she said I never knew whence the name Caverley came into the family. She looked up with surprise and said: "Did not you know that we had royal blood in our veins: our ancestor (Phelps) was rightful heir to the crown of England, but as there was another more favorite with the people, he to avoid bloodshed fled to this country with a young man by the name of Caverley then about 18 years of age, his nephew and the king's foot page. Having access to the royal treasury he loaded a ship with silver, came to Boston, changed his name, and purchased land largely, as Boston Neck, a part of Charlestown, and other public lands. After some time learning that a great reward was offered for his capture, he changed his name again, destroyed all his papers, and went to Connecticut (Hebron), to hide himself from his pursuers. She said that she had heard her mother (Mrs. Temperance (Phelps) Strong), say that she went with her grandmother Caverley into the room where some of the silver was deposited (in the walls). Mrs. Lyman remembers hearing her grandmother say, that her father owned a good deal of Boston in real fact. She asked her, why he did not go and recover it, and was answered that her father thought that it would hurt very many people a great deal more than it would do him good. "I have often," she says, "heard my mother say, that her grandfather (Solomon Phelps), was a very rich man." She added, that from another source she learned some years ago, that her grandmother Temperance Phelps, was partially engaged to another person and that her father finding it out asked her to take a ride with him, and disclosed to her some of the facts of his early history in connection with the Caverleys in consequence of which she accepted the hand of Ezra Strong and the two families were united in one. His kingly name Guelph he changed to Phelps, dropping the g and altering u or v to ph. This family tradition has enough of the spice of curiosity in it to keep it good from one generation to another. It is garnered up in these pages for the amusement of Abigail Caverley's descendants in all time.]

[JOHN LEE b. in 1621, came to this country from Ipswich, Eng., in Ship Francis, the last of April, 1634, when but 13 years of age, under the care of Mr. William Westwood. This gentleman settled at Newtown (Cambridge) Mass., whence he soon went to Hartford, Ct., in the company that settled that place, and was a prominent man there in the early years of that town. He and Dea. Stephen Hart lived side by side. Next we find Stephen Hart among the first settlers of Farmington, and soon afterwards, John Lee, also made freeman in it. In 1658, John Lee married Mary Hart, daughter of Dea. Stephen Hart. They united with the church July 15, 1660, under the care of Rev. Roger Newton. At his death in 1689, his estate was appraised at £359, lawful money. He was 68 years old. His children were: i. John Lee b. June 11, 1659. ii. Mary Lee b. Aug. 14, 1664: m. Mrs. Mary (Hart) Lee, widow of John Lee, the settler, m. Jan. 5, 1692, Jedediah Strong of Northampton as his 3d wife, by which marriage Preserved Strong became both her step-son and son-in-law. In removing to Northampton, in consequence of this marriage, she took her two youngest children, David and Tabitha to that place with her. She d. Oct. 10, 1700, by the fall off a horse (as already described under account of the family of Jedediah Strong, p. 770), aged 70. As to the family of Dea. Stephen Hart (deacon in the church of Rev. Thomas Hooker of Hartford) the author has not been able to gather very specific details. The records at Farmington back of 1682, are very imperfect and some of the earlier records were destroyed by fire. Whom Dea. Stephen Hart m. the author has not been able to find. His children were: I. John. II. Stephen, Jr. III. Thomas IV. Sarah. V. Mary Hart b. in 1630, who m. John Lee and for a 2d husband Jedediah Strong. VI. Mehitable. VII. Margaret Hart who m. 18364–5. v. GENL. JOHN STRONG (son of Noah and Deborah Strong) b. Aug. 16, 1738: m. Sept. 2, 1759, Agnes McCure b. in Salisbury Ct., April 2, 1739 (only daughter of John McCure a wealthy land holder) in Edinburgh, Scotland.

[John McCure was deeply implicated in the rebellion of 1715, in Scotland, and fled to this country, having first put his large property into the hands of a friend, to prevent its confiscation. He was in the receipt of rents until the time of his death, after which no remittances were made. He left surviving him his wife whose death occurred soon, and a young son John and daughter Agnes. John died soon after his parents, being killed in a naval engagement; and Agnes, the only survivor of this once prosperous family, was put out to service in her orphanage and poverty, in which condition she remained until her marriage.]

In September, 1765, John Strong, then 27 years old, went up to the eastern side of Lake Champlain, to look for a home in the Vermont wilderness, in company with a friend who went thither on his usual hunting excursion in the fall. He selected then the spot for a farm on which he afterwards lived and died, in Addison, Vt., and put up upon it a rude house for a home into which in February following (1766) he moved with his wife and three children: Asa, aged 6; Samuel, aged 3; and Polly 1½ years. Here in June following his fourth child John was born. This was the first house, it is said built by an English settler, north of Massachusetts, and his son John was the first English child born in Addison Co., Vt. There also his children, Electa, Luke, Chloe, Moses and Cyrus, were born. His wife and three children and household effects were all abundantly accommodated in his sleigh "drawn by an old pair of mares." Scanty enough was his complete inventory of worldly goods. Their life in the woods was full of toils and adventures. The husband was ever busy with his axe and hoe, even while shaking with chills and fever, and in danger at different times, while at his work, from bears which were numerous and fierce, and from the Indians and the British. The wife, though of delicate form and fragile constitution, had a stout heart, and bravely faced the severe trials and dangers of her pioneer life, away from friends, and the many comforts of cultivated society. They both lived to see the wilderness blossom around them as the rose, and to remember their early experiences of toil and trouble, as a far-off dream of sadness, with just deep enough shadows in it, to make the brightness of their later years all the more beautiful in the contrast. There is a brief biographical account of him in "The History of Addison County, Vt.," which is full of the romance of pioneer life in the early settlement of this country. In June, 1777, when Burgoyne took Crown Point, his family fled, in his absence, from the Indians, who came with the British through that region, sweeping every thing before them, and burned his house already emptied of its inhabitants. After a long separation from them and search after them, he accidentally discovered them at Dorset, Vt., and remained there with them for several years. Here his daughter Mabel was born. He represented Dorset in the State legislature from 1779 to 1782. In 1781, he was elected Asst. Judge for Bennington Co., and also in 1782. In 1783, he returned to Addison, to the large farm on which ever since some of his descendants have lived. He was an extensive landholder. He was elected to the legislature from Addison in 1784, 5, and 6. In 1785, he was elected first judge of the Court of Addison Co., and in 1786, judge of probate and member of the Council. These offices he held until 1801. In 1791, he was a member of the convention that ratified the Constitution of the United States. On the admission of Vermont into the Union, in 1801, he resigned all his public offices. He was a member of the Cong. Ch., of Addison, and a man of liberal ideas and ways. He d. June 16, 1816; she d. March 3, 1829. In Prest. Dwight's "Travels in New England," vol. ii, p. 443, occurs the following statement concerning Major Genl. John Strong: "During the early periods of his residence in Addison, availing himself of the market furnished by the British garrison at Crown Point and the high prices which they gave for every thing supplied by his plantation, he became possessed of very handsome property. In the war he experienced a painful reverse of fortune. His house was burnt, his cattle were carried off, and his furniture was plundered by the British. Once he was made a prisoner by the Indians, in their service, and both himself and his family were shamefully abused. When he regained his liberty he retired to Arlington, where he took a farm upon lease and cultivated it until the year 1783. After the peace he returned to Addison, and by various business industriously and prudently pursued, has raised himself to affluence."

He was afterwards put in command of "The Indianola," another of the ram fleet, to open up the Mississippi and Red rivers for the passage of transports which he gallantly achieved. He was on the Indianola when she was captured, after having been disabled in action. Last to leave the boat he saved his life only by floating in the night on a cotton bale some seven miles in the Red River when he was picked up faint and feeble by a gunboat. He was afterwards put in command of "The Switzerland." He saw much severe service from first to last, which induced the disease, consumption, of which he died. He went in 1866, at the expiration of his term of service to California for his health, where this noble patriot died as truly for his country, as if falling in the smoke of battle, at St. Helena, Cal., Oct. 10, 1868. That our forefathers appreciated highly the procurement of the best possible education for their daughters is well known to any one acquainted with the early history of the country. Mabel Strong was sent first to Middlebury to school, and then on horseback 200 miles to Litchfield, Ct., with her brother Moses, to the boarding school of Miss Sarah Pierce, which was then regarded as one of the best institutions of the kind in the land. Litchfield, with its noted law school under Tapping Reeve, was remarkable at that time for its many literary and social attractions.

Efner of Buffalo, a resident of the city since 1809, and one of its founders and a soldier in the war of 1812, and Sophia Dorchester): a lawyer. He went in 1849 to Oregon and was clerk of the U. S District Court: was appointed at the organization of Washington Territory Asst. U. S. Dist. Attorney for the Territory: a member of its first legislature: twice elected prosecuting attorney for the First Judicial District. In the Indian war of 1855–6, he volunteered and served from its beginning to its close, and commanded a company of horse, returned to Buffalo in 1857. In the late war he raised a company of volunteers and was elected its captain April 19, 1861 (Co. E, 21st Regt. N. Y. Vols.), and was commissioned its captain May 7, 1861: promoted to the Lt. Colonelcy of the 38th N. Y. Vols., Dec. 17, 1861, and to the Colonelcy of it Nov. 10, 1862, with rank from Oct. 10, 1862: mustered out with said regt. (a two years regt.) June 26, 1863. On Sept. 29, 1863, he was appointed Colonel of the 15th Regt. Veteran Reserve Corps and commissioned March 13, 1865, Brevet Brig. Gen.: mustered out of the service June 30, 1866. He was wounded twice in the battle of Williamsburgh, Va., May 5, 1862; first in the right hand soon after entering the conflict and afterwards by a Minie ball passing through his right hip just at the close of the battle after nearly three hours engagement. This last wound has crippled him for life, shortening his right leg three inches and making his hip stiff, the ball having passed directly through the joint, tearing it to pieces and paralyzing partially the entire right side. He was the second mounted officer who went over the rebel works at Yorktown, Va. In the official report made by Gen. D. B. Birney of the battle at Williamsburgh, Va., Lt. Col. James C. Strong is said to "deserve especial mention for his bravery and gallant conduct during the battle." He was afterwards military commandant of the post at Chicago and at Philadelphia. His wounds disabled him after returning to Buffalo from pursuing the sedentary life demanded by his profession; and he was appointed Assessor of Internal Revenue for the 30th N. Y. District April 20, 1867, which office he held for two years residing at Buffalo. From a brief genealogical record compiled by him, some years ago, of his own ancestors and immediate relatives the author has derived many facts and dates of value especially concerning the descendants of Col. [The descendants of Jonathan Clarke, and Sarah Strong, represent more lines of Strong descent than any others of Elder John Strong's descendants, so far as the author has observed. 1. They are descended twice from Mary Strong, wife of Dea John Clark, of Northampton — through Nathaniel Clark, their son, and Mary Clark their daughter (wife of Benjamin Edwards), whose dau. Thankful Edwards, m. Jonathan Clark, son of Nathaniel. 2. (They are descended also from Elizabeth Strong, sister of Mary above, wife of Esq. Joseph Parsons, of Northampton, whose daughter Jemima Parsons, m. Samuel Kingsley, Jr. 3. & 4. They are the descendants likewise of Jedediah and Thomas (brothers of Mary and Elizabeth) through Aaron Strong (son of Preserved who was son of Jedediah) and Rachel Strong (dau. of Justice Joseph Strong, son of Thomas.).]

* Rev. Jonathan Edwards was expected to preach the ordination sermon; but as he did not arrive at the appointed hour, the Rev. Samuel Moody of York, Me., consented to take his place. In his prayer before preaching, he alluded to the superior talents, gifts and graces of Mr. Edwards who in the meantime had entered the church and quietly made his way into the pulpit. On seeing him there at the end of the prayer, he said: "I did not intend to flatter you to your face; but I will tell you that people say your wife is going to heaven by a shorter road than yourself."

Her family friends were very loth to have her go so far away, hardly expecting to see her ever again. She went to her new home on horseback being guided on their way only by marks cut in the trees, while her effects went up the Connecticut river by boat. A piece of her wedding dress in the author's possession shows that we can not justly speak of our forefathers of that day as rude in their ideas of dress or of personal expenditure. It was a skirt and dress of crimson color of a very thick damask silk. He was commissioned April 27, 1759, Third Lieutenant in his Majesty's service at No. 4 (Charlestown, N. H.), by Gov. Pownall of the province of Mass. Bay. During the Revolutionary war he was for some time commissary at Charlestown, a point of concentration for the American troops under Gen. Stark. He was also high sheriff of the county and held at different times various local offices of honor and trust. Though small of stature he was energetic and brave. He went once with several deputies to arrest a noted horse thief (Shem Canfield) who had armed himself and hidden in the woods. His subordinates were afraid to arrest him when found as he declared that he would shoot any one who made the attempt. "No! you will not," said Lt. Hunt, and went right up and captured him. He d. Three brothers Farnsworth emigrated in 1740 from Lunenburgh to Charlestown, N. H., then a wide wilderness traversed by savages. By 1744 there were nine or ten families located there in log cabins near each other; a saw mill was built, a fort begun, and the settlement named No. 4. At the commencement of the Cape Breton war in 1746, the little colony was several times attacked by the Indians, the mill was destroyed, horses, hogs and cattle were driven off and the people driven into the fort or slaughtered; and the place was soon entirely deserted by its inhabitants. In 1749 Capt. Pinehas Stevens took command of the abandoned fort which was uninjured, successfully repulsed all attacks from the Indians, was rewarded with a sword of honor for his gallantry by Gov. Sir Charles Knowles of Boston, and he named No. 4, Charlestown, in honor of the governor. As one among many instances of the droll humor that prevailed extensively among our ancestors, it is said that when Mrs. Hunt appeared in Charlestown with the first parasol in her hands ever seen there, a good neighbor of hers, Mrs. Bowen, came out of her house with a long handled frying pan taken from the chimney-corner, and accompanied her in apropos style for some distance up the street.

June 21, 1837: grad. at The New York College ("Free Academy") in 1856, studied law for three years: spent a year in travel in Europe; and, in Sept. 1861, took a commission as 2d Lieut. in the 53d N. Y. Regt. Vols. (The D'Epineuil Zouaves): was transferred to the signal corps on the staff of Gen. Foster; and served as Aid-de-camp in the battles of Roanoke Island and Newbern and received the commendation of his superior for his energy and bravery. On March 22, 1862, he was placed on Gen. Burnside's staff to act as judge advocate: appointed Military Secretary to Gov. Stanley of North Caroline. On July 7, 1862, was promoted major: was in active duty with Gen. Burnside in Ohio, Kentucky, and E. Tennessee. He was promoted in 1864, to be Lt. Colonel and Brevet Col. Subsequently to Gen. Burnside's retirement from the corps he served on the staff of Gen. Parke and was promoted for his faithfulness and honorable conduct as an officer to Brevet Brig. General. He d. April 13, 1866. Although in every battle of his corps from the wilderness to the fall of Richmond, he was a large part of the time in feeble health from the effects of a severe sickness, Dec. 1, 1862, contracted in the service of his country; from which he never fully recovered afterwards, and which finally ended his life. He was remarkable for his pure-mindedness, modesty and integrity, and was equally fearless and gentle.

21853–4. v. GOV. CALEB STRONG (son of Lt. Caleb Strong and Phebe Lyman) b. Jan. 9, 1745, grad. at Harvard in 1764, m. Nov. 20, 1777, Sarah Hooker b. Jan. 30, 1758 (dau. of Rev. John Hooker of Northhampton and Sarah Worthington, sister of the distinguished Col. John Worthington of Springfield, Mass.). He d. suddenly of angina pectoris, Nov. 7, 1819, aged 74: she d. Feb. 12, 1817, aged 59. He studied law with Major Joseph Hawley of Northampton and was very assiduous in the pursuit of his profession: county attorney 24 years (1776–1800): member of the convention for forming the state constitution of Massachusetts, and one of the committee that drew up that instrument which remained for forty years the fundamental law of the state, and was then but slightly modified by the convention elected to revise and improve it wherever it seemed desirable after so long a period. In 1780, he was chosen state senator and every year afterwards chosen anew until 1789. In 1787, he was elected a delegate to the convention which formed the present Constitution of the United States. He was U. S. Senator in the First Congress (1788–94), and again (1794–1800), but resigned his seat before the expiration of the second term of office. He was one of the committee that drew the Judiciary Act. He seemed to be more fond of quiet private life than of public life, to which however he was continually recalled by his trusting and admiring fellow citizens. In 1800, he was chosen Governor of Massachusetts. Although party feeling then ran high, and "federal" and "democrat" were words of a very positive sense, so much was he revered where he was best known, that not a single vote was cast against him in seven or eight towns of which Northampton was the centre. In 1810, he was nominated to the same office, and refused the nomination until after it was persistently and earnestly urged upon his acceptance, as he did not relish the excitement and tumult of stormy political life. He was a man of a gentle spirit, simple in his tastes and manners, frugal, modest, prudent, discreet, contented and altogether domestic in his habits. He was never charged with ambitious views. As early as 1772, he was a professing Christian, and acted plainly under the sense of religious obligation, and sought the praise of God rather than that of men. He was a pillar in the church at Northampton, and for many years Prest. of the Hampshire Co. Missionary Society and of the Hampshire Bible Society. In the later years of his life he was much given to the study of the Scriptures and of theological works. Time grew less and eternity ever more in his thoughts. In private life he was affable and attractive. He had those magnetic qualities of character which with his integrity, simplicity and dignity drew all eyes and hearts to him. As a counsellor and an advocate alike he was a man of power. When in the war of 1812, Gov. Strong (aged 67) was required under the authority of the President of the United States (Prest. Madison), to order out a detachment of militia, to be placed under the command of Gen. Dearborn of the U. S. A., he hesitated to comply with the requisition and after asking the Justices of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts for their official opinion of his rights and duties, he declined to do so and was sustained in the ground that he took by all the other departments of the state Government and by three-fourths of the people. At the same time he put the whole military force of the state in array against the British and left the management of its defenses to a very able military officer Gen. Brooks, afterwards Gov. Brooks. He was doubtless over-zealous for states' rights, but his conscientiousness and firmness of character as a statesman and a politician, are strikingly manifest in this transaction." The design, as he and the Massachusetts people conceived, in placing the proposed militia force under Gen. Dearborn was to throw them as an invading force upon Canada, by which use of them the power of the state to defend her own extended coast-line would also be greatly weakened. He sympathized accordingly with the Hartford Convention, and was active in procuring its existence, but with the idea, in his own language, that "such men as New England would select to represent her on that occasion would never forget for a moment their duties to the General government. He was no secessionist in feeling. While his enemies charged him with seeking to embarrass the executive of the U. S. government and with being a violent partizan, his friends were almost disposed to quarrel with him for his want of positive partizanship as a politician. He was a moderate Calvinist in his religious views, and was liberal in his sympathies towards those who did not see divine truth in all its angles and aspects exactly as he himself did. His gubernatorial addresses to the Legislature of Massachusetts have been collected into a volume, and are fine specimens of profound thought presented in such clear transparent forms of expression as to deserve the designation of "choice English." Gov. Strong was of medium height, erect, of a compact frame and graceful carriage. His wife, with whom he lived in wedlock for 40 years was a lady of pleasing aspect, strong good sense, fervent piety and remarkable sweetness of disposition. Their home was full of sunshine and, of the peace and presence of God.

the Cong. Ch., of South Egremont, Mass., for nearly 24 years (June 28, 1770, April 29, 1794). The church consisted of six members at its formation and sixty were added to it during his ministry. In the Shays' rebellion he and most of his church took sides with the government, while those without favored the rebels. So great was the feud engendered that the pastor resigned his post and the church was entirely broken up; and the sanctuary was closed and for 15 years (1795–1810) there was no public worship of God in the place. In 1795, he was installed over the Cong. Ch., at Paris Hill, Oneida Co., N. Y., containing at the time but 19 members, to which 273 additions were made by letter and profession during his ministry. Y., March 3, 1785 (son of Cornelius Lansing and Hester Vanderheyden). He was grad. at Yale, in 1804, studied theology with Rev. Dr. Blatchford, of Lansingburgh. He had seven separate pastorates, but longest and with the largest success at Auburn, N. Y.: as at Onondaga, N. Y. (1806–14), Stillwater, N. Y., (1814–16), Auburn, the First Presb. Ch. (1816–28), Utica, the first Presb. Ch. (1829–32), the Houston St. Presb. Ch. N. Y., (1833–5), the Chrystie St. Presb. Ch., a Missionary Church, (1846–48), and the Clinton Avenue Cong. Ch. Brooklyn, of which he was the first pastor (1848, Dec. 19, 1855). In accepting the call to Auburn, he declined at the same time a call received from Boston. Wherever he labored revivals were sure to appear, sixty of them having occurred in his ministry. While he was at Auburn, 500 united with the church by profession and nearly half as many more by letter. He was the original projector of Auburn Theol. Sem., and while pastor there acted as its financial agent, and raised himself more than a hundred thousand dollars for its endowment, and filled for some time also the chair of Sacred Rhetoric in the Seminary. He suffered much in the latter half of his life from ill health, and found it necessary at different times to intermit his labors for a season, but always returned to them with eager pleasure when he could. He labored much as an evangelist in Western New York. She d. at Utica, N. Y., March 6, 1831; he d. at Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, O., March 19, 1857, aged 72.

Feb. 1, 1855, Julia Fowler b. at Albany, Feb. 8, 1834 (dau. of Samuel Stephenson Fowler, and Julia Francis Gregory) : a lawyer residing at Brooklyn, N. Y. He entered the U. S. Army of Vols., in the beginning of the late war in 1861, and was commissioned First Lieut. and Adjt. of the 75th N. Y. Regt., which was stationed at first at Fort Pickens, Santa Rosa Island, during which time Pensacola, the Navy Yard, etc., were recovered from the enemy. He was for five months Judge Advocate at Pensacola of General Courts Martial, and was afterwards ordered by General Butler to New Orleans, and remained in the department of the gulf until discharged. He took an active part in the Teche campaigns, and at the battle of Camp Bisland, one of the hardest artillery fights of the war, he was severely wounded by the bursting of a shell. While being carried from the field, he was captured by a squad of rebel cavalry. Unable to walk he was placed upon a horse and ordered to the rear ; but not fancying such a position he plunged his spurs into the flanks of his steed, and amid a shower of pistol shots dashed for our lines, which he reached in safety. Upon reporting the location, and number of the rebel cavalry, he had the pleasure of seeing a squadron of our troops sent after them, which soon captured the entire force. He was confined for three months by his wound, but was able to take an active part in the siege and capture of Port Hudson, and in the sharp conflicts that followed in Louisiana. In Nov. 1863, he was compelled to ask for a discharge from further military service. On his return home he was confined to his bed for five months from the effects of his wound. In Jan. 1869, he was elected by the soldiers of the State, Senior Vice Grand Commander of "The Grand Army of the Republic," and in Jan. 1870, he was elected by the Department Encampment at Binghamton, Grand Commander of the Department of New York in place of Major General Daniel E. Sickles now U. S. Minister (1870) to Spain. Children:

[Copy of the last will of Rev. Thomas Strong. — "Joseph, £100, and a horse, saddle and bridle, and the bed he lies on; Jerusha, Persis, Lucina and Mehitable, the four best beds in the house, with furniture; the best for the eldest, &c. My wife's clothes: — Jerusha, the black silk; Persis, a brown one that is not made up; Lucina, a chintz one; Mehitable, a black bombazine. Lucina, a velvet back-cloth: Mehitable, buckles, beads and necklace, and to Jerusha, Persis, Lucina and Mehitable, each of them, a large silver spoon, and twelve tea spoons, and two large ones and tea-tongs between them, to make up each of them a set; and to Elizabeth, a yellowish or brown silk gown, and a large shawl; and her laces and linen to be divided amongst my daughters; the best laces among those that live with me. After this and my funeral charges and gravestones set up for me and my wife and my debts paid, to Joseph a double portion; to Ashbel, his clothes and spending money while he lives with Mr. Edwards, and to Jerusha, Persis, and Lucina and Mehitable, equal to what Elizabeth has had. And if there be anything left, to be divided equally between Joseph, and my five daughters. My wife's neck cloths, between my four youngest daughters, and house-room for my daughters. The above is my will, let no child dispute it. New Marlborough, Thomas Strong, April 3, 1777." For a copy of this will, and many of the facts here furnished, the author is indebted to Dr. M. C. Y., and Lora Andrews): a farmer at Champaigne, Ill. A devoted Christian and ardent patriot he sprang at his country's call to arms. He enlisted July, 1861, in what he called "the Lord's war," and to take part in which he counted a privilege that he could not be denied. He was at the time a Captain of militia, but enlisted as a private in Co. I, Second Ill. Cavalry, Col. Noble; and was at once made quarter-master sergeant. His regiment saw much severe service; being sent in advance of Gen. Grant into Northern Mississippi. They did scouting duty from Duquoine, Ill., to Oxford, Miss, and were stationed at different times at Paducah and Columbus, Ky., Ironton, Humboldt, Bolivar, Lagrange, Tenn., and Holly Springs, Miss. He was an earnest Christian in camp as at home and one of the Lord's soldiers everywhere. He was made commandant (1862–3) of the freedmen's post at Memphis with the rank of Captain; a very responsible position. His duties embraced the care of military stations, missionaries, schools, plantation-operations, mills, the clearing of timber, a steamer in connection with the post, military stores, etc. He had from 1,000 to 1,500 freedmen to care for. His duties were too arduous and he sank under them and died saying "All is peace," at Memphis, June 26, 1863. Children:

In 1847 he took a contract with others to build the Burlington and Rutland R. Road between those two places, and a portion of the road on to Bellows Falls, and was afterwards largely interested in building the R. Road from Ogdensburgh to Rouse's Point, N. Y. In July, 1851, he removed to Fond Du Lac, Wis., where he has since resided. Here he engaged at once in building what under various names at different times is now known as the Chicago and North Western Railway, whose owners now form one of the largest R. R. Corporations in the world. In the midst of many and great discouragements and while others associated with him gave up their hopes and efforts for success, at times he held on persistently and triumphantly to the end, in one instance building some miles of road at his own expense, and running it at his own risk. He is now retired from business (since 1868).

made judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Rensselaer Co.; in 1831, County Treasurer; in 1832, postmaster of Troy, which office he held for 10 years (1832–42), and was for several terms, one of the County Supervisors. He was also for many years a Bank Director, Railroad Director, Prest. of the Troy Lyceum of Natural History, Trustee of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and of the Troy Orphan Asylum, and Senior Warden of St. Paul's Church, beside holding many other official positions. "He was a man of vigorous constitution, industrious habits, great cheerfulness and abundant means — noble in thought, and kind in speech." He d. Nov. 1, 1867, at Troy, where his widow still resides.

[In 1369, Sir Neil Campbell of Lockawe, Argyleshire, chief of the powerful clan of Campbell, married the sister of Robert Bruce, and from them the Campbells of Argyleshire descended. Duncan Campbell, grandson of Sir Niel, the founder of the clan of the Campbells of Inverawe, assumed, according to a Highland custom the name of Donachie or "The Macdonachie," that is, "the son of Duncan," his father's name. Some of his descendants dropped the name of Campbell, and others took the patronymic Maconochie which is spelled variously afterwards in the acts of parliament and in old title deeds, Maconochy, McConahy and McConihe. In 1661, Maconochy of Inverawe was second in command in the Earl of Argyle's army against the reigning house of Stuart. In the same year his estate and family titles were attainted and sold by the crown: but in 1668, after the Revolution, the attainder of the Earl of Argyle and of his adherents was reversed and Maconochy of Inverawe was paid by the government for his lost estate there, and he purchased with the money given him the estate ever since held by his family called Meadowbank in Mid-Lothian. The present chief or representative of the clan of the ancient line of Campbells and Maconochies is Alexander Maconochie, with the title of Lord Meadowbank, residing on his estate near Edinburgh.]

She d. in Penfield, N. Y., April 2, 1842, and was buried in Mt. Hope, Rochester. To him the author is indebted for the full and fine account here rendered of the descendants of Ezra Strong of Westfield, Mass., and Mary King. No one has spent time or money more freely than he has, for the purpose of doing the most complete justice possible to the history of his special branch of the family. In early life he kept a nursery in Rochester (1830–8) which was the first one established there and has been known for many years as "Elwanger and Barry's." He then became manager of two large flouring mills at Penfield, near Rochester (1838–45). For 27 years past he has been engaged in managing his personal estate at Rochester. He was a member of the recent Constitutional Convention of the State and is President of a Savings-Bank at Rochester. He owned at one time 300 acres of what is now the city of Rochester.

He was an extensive wool merchant at New York, but early retired from business, to a large landed estate in Geneva, N. Y., on the borders of the lake. He was Prest. of the Bank of Geneva (1838–). He returned, however, again (1843–4) to the city, to his former business. He had been an active and influential democrat in his politics, but at the breaking out of the late war threw his whole heart into the issue, and, by public speeches and untiring exertions, did much to fire the hearts of his fellow merchants, with his own zeal. His own life and fortune he cast at once into the balance. He received from Prest. Lincoln, the commission of brigadier general, and was put in charge of Cairo, Ill., as its military commander. His health was so broken in the end, by long and severe service, that he was forced to abandon the life of a soldier, and, after his return to the city, he was thrown from his carriage while riding in Central Park, and became paralyzed for life, and died from the effects of this injury, March 15, 1868. He was for many years Prest. of the Bank of North America, in New York, and was a member of the Board of Commerce. He was a member of the Episcopal church (St. George's), and "an earnest, unostentatious and benevolent man."

Of his descendants the author has the names of 100 or more in different generations with the dates of their births, but not also their residences and occupations. Such a dry list of mere names seems to him as uninteresting, as would several columns of names in a city directory. Needing all the room that he can obtain for other more valuable details, he therefore purposely suppresses for the present the facts of such a sort that he has gathered.

The Bakers and Clarks maintained a regular family prayer meeting for a great number of years, at Northampton, and their families were, in their earlier generations, at least, remarkable for their devoted piety. Of the children of Capt John Baker, it is said, that they all stood forth through life as prominent Christian men and women, and filled full their measure of usefulness. The sons were large and tall, from six feet upwards in height, large framed and powerful. The six brothers whose ages are known averaged upwards of eighty-two years each." They are thus described by one of the family who saw them in their advanced age when herself quite young — " they all wore big curly wigs and were a jolly set of men, being then from 70 to 83 years of age : they were affectionate towards each other and very devoted to religion." They kept up the habit of frequent mutual visits with each other until death bore them all to the better society above.

Of the history of the Baker branch of the Clark and so of the Strong family the author has not been able to learn anything beyond what is contained in the brief " Genealogy of the descendants of Edward Baker of Lynn, Mass.," by Nelson M. Baker of Lafayette, N. Y. Syracuse, 1867.

bapt. Oct. 23, 1653. VIII. Capt. William Clark b. July 3, 1656. IX. Sarah Clark b. March 19, 1659, m. John Parsons. Here behold a sad picture of the times. Jack, a negro servant of Samuel Wolcott of Wethersfield, set fire to the house of Lt. William Clark, July 14, 1681, in Northampton, "by taking a brand of fire from the hearth and swinging it up and down, for to find victuals;" and was sentenced "to be taken from the bar to the place whence he came, and there to be hanged by the neck till he be dead and then to be taken down and burnt to ashes in the fire." He confessed that "he did it and did it in carelessness;" but the law had its course.]

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN STRONG (SON OF THOMAS), A CARPENTER AT BRIDGEHAMPTON, L. I.

[His descendants only know that his father's name was Thomas, but where he lived and whom he married they do not seem to know at all. They have the idea that he came from Wales, which is probably a traditional fragment of the ancestral origin of Elder John Strong, the founder of the American Family of Strongs.]

he did at Flatbush, N. Y. He has been engaged for some years past in editing the Bible Cyclopedia. Rev. Dr. McClintock of New York was for some years previously to his death associated with him in that great scholarly undertaking. He writes that "his father died when he was but four years old and that as no communication had been kept up with his father's relatives in England he knows nothing of their history past or present. His father's family was located, he thinks in London or its vicinity." He gave no account of his own personal family. His father had, he said, two brothers, John and James.

II.

JOHN STRONG OF ALBANY, KY.

John, Michael and William Strong, brothers, were involved in the Emmet rebellion in 1798, in Ireland. When that collapsed the three brothers escaped secretly and landed in 1799, in Philadelphia, and after tarrying in that city for a few months they separated from each other, and he never afterwards heard either from them or of them. He located at last in Cumberland, Clinton Co., Ky., on a farm near what is now Albany, Ky. In 1808, he m. Elizabeth Williams. He was a teacher in the Ill. State Institution for the Blind until 1861, when he was appointed postmaster at Jacksonville, Ill., which office he resigned in 1866, "because," as he says, "he could not afford the disgrace of holding office at the hands of the traitor, Andrew Johnson." He was also private secretary to senator Yates and clerk to the Senate committee (Congressional) on territories. He was chosen a state elector in the last presidential election. He says: "My father hated slavery and left Kentucky, in order to get away from it. I have been bitterly opposed to it, and have acted with its opponents from my youth, and would have voted with my father for John P. Hale, if I had been old enough." He has 2 sons: (1). Henry Fremont Strong b. Sept. 26, 1856. (2). Louis Lincoln Strong b. Sept. 12, 1865. 2. James William Strong b. Sept. 24, 1834: a lawyer at Jacksonville. He m. Jane Hedenbergh. In 1859, he removed to Tennessee and took the stump against secession, and left the state clandestinely to avoid being murdered by the angry rebels of the South: became a Lieut. in Co. E, of the 24th Iowa Vol. Infantry, and was disabled and left the service: located in St. Joseph, Mo., in the practice of his profession: re-entered the service as Col. of the 87th Missouri Regt., and was mustered out at the close of the war. He is now a lawyer at St. Joseph. He has two children, John and Lucy. He lost four in infancy. 3. Joseph Burnett who lives at Woodson, Ill. 6. Eugene Burnett, a grocer in Girard, Ill. 7. Elizabeth Burnett who is married (husband's name not ascertained) and lives in Hartford, Ct. Mr. John D. Strong in closing his account of his father's family adds: "My grandfather was born in Cork, Ireland, but of English descent, was a Presbyterian, and an intense hater of popery. He claimed descent from some of the conquerors of Ireland, who came thither after the Londonderry massacre. He was a merchant before coming to America. He was six feet two in height and his sons were each six feet high. I am proud that he was wise and just enough to implant the hatred of wrong in the minds of his children so deeply, that they could not forget it and left the love of liberty as a legacy to his posterity. We have all managed to live comfortably, none of us have been convicts or paupers. I was never sued for a dollar, nor did I ever sue any one, preferring to lose what is due to go to law with any one. None of us who bear the ancestral name have been given to strong drink, but are teetotalers, all of us."

III.

There is also a family of Strongs at Albany, N. Y., of whom are Rev. Robert Strong, Episcopal, of that place, and William Strong, his brother, a merchant there, whose father came to this country in the latter part of the last century The scanty account obtained of this family, the author does not find as he pens this, at the last moment, having put it away somewhere so carefully, as to hide it even from his own hands.

III. INDEX OF THOSE OF ALL OTHER NAMES.

[The subjoined list of references is meant to include, for the benefit of genealogical investigators, three distinct sets of family-names; beside the two combined in each marriage, that also of the maternal side of the house, in every new marital connection. References, not found in any case on the page indicated, will always, it is believed, be found on the succeeding one.]

The number of references in the various indexes is as follows:

I. Index of notices of various connected families, 102.

II. Index of those of the name of Strong, 1310.

III. Index of those of all other names, 9100.

The families most connected with the Strongs by intermarriage have been those of the following names and in the order for classes in which they are here placed:

1. Baker, Clark, Lyman, Parsons and White.

2. Allen, Bartlett, Brown, Clapp, Cook, Curtiss, Kingsley, Lee, Norton, Phelps, Pomeroy, Root, Sheldon, Smith and Wright.

3. Baldwin, Bissell, Bliss, Davis, Dwight, Edwards, Fitch, Hall, Johnson, Jones, Kellogg, Loomis, Moore, Stebbins, Thompson, Warner and Williams.

4. Adams, Avery, Beach, Chapman, Day, Dickinson, Foote, Foster, Goodrich, Graves, Miller, Parker, Porter, Pratt, Robinson, Rogers, Rust, Shepard, Steele, Stevens, Taylor, Wells and Wilson.

ERRATA.

Those that have been discovered as such are these:

I. In some cases generations are wrongly numbered. Read:

1. For Asahel Strong (p. 199), the fourth generation instead of the eighth.
2. For Abner Strong (p. 234), the eighth instead of the sixth.
3. For Rev. Dr. Cyprian Strong (p. 298), the fifth instead of the fourth, and for his children (pp. 298–307), the sixth instead of the fifth.
4. For Capt. Nathaniel Root (p. 324), the sixth instead of the fourth.
5. The generations of Joseph Strong of Granby, Ct., and of his children (pp. 411–13), should be one lower than they are each numbered.
6. There are a few other instances of a like sort, as on pages 1414, 1416, 1428–9, 1458–61, and probably elsewhere.

II. The references to previous pages, which however the genealogical numbers cited with them might suffice in each case to correct, from page 763 to 840, should be one and all increased by four. This part of the work, after the proofs pertaining to it were returned corrected by the author, was repaged by the printer without any notice of the fact, for the purpose of covering the two title-pages of volume second, otherwise not enumerated.

III. In two instances children have the names in their family list of their mothers instead of their fathers:

1. On p. 656, Nos. 12271, 2, 3, should be denominated Porters, and not Jeffreys.
2. On p. 1408, Nos. 26267–72, should be called Bonds and not Nortons.

IV. In two instances the last name is wanting in its proper place:

1. Lucy Strong (p. 1146), dau. of Daniel, should be Lucy Strong Wolcott, dau. of Stephen Wolcott.
2. Elmira Norton (p. 1413), in 13th line from bottom of the page should be Elmira Norton Kingsley.

V. In the two following cases a wrong parentage is given in whole or in part:

1. The mother of Nathaniel White, Jr., (p. 1314) was Martha Bascom, and not Esther Strong.
2. The parents of Abigail Cook (p. 1457), were instead of Dea. Noah Cook, etc., Aaron Cook and Penelope Strong.

VI. Several instances occur of a wrong enumeration of various parties belonging to the family, such as:

1. Adelia Strong (p. 184), now numbered 2997, should be No. 2927–8.
2. Judith N. Arms (p. 1320), now numbered 24502, should be 24702.

Thorough search for mistakes of this class would perhaps reveal many of them.

VII. There are the following misprints:

1. On page xxi, in 2d column, in 25th line from the bottom of the page, Naomi Strong James should be printed Janes.
2. Zerivah Ruth Miner (p. 144), should be Zerviah, &c.
3. Mary Lakove Holmes (p. 154), should be Lakore.
4. Nathaniel Ashley (p. 214), should be Ackley.
5. Samuel Mervin Strong (p. 489), should be Samuel Merwin, &c.
6. For Benick City (p. 521), read Berwick, &c.
7. Elmira Atkins (p. 863), No. 15996, is for Elmina, &c.
8. Electa Strong Woodbury (p. 1018), No 19121, should be Woodbridge.
9. Geo. William Floyd (p. 702), under No. 13164, should be Genl., &c.

10. Francis Strong (p. 713), should be Frances.
11. New Lynn, O. (p. 732) is for New Lyme.
12. W. Manfield, S. O. (p. 879), should be W. Mansfield, O.
13. Marcia Grover (p. 1093), No. 20353, should be Groves.
14. Lovina Strong (p. 1099), No. 20445–6, should be Lavinia.
15. On page 1271, in 2d line from the bottom, Elisha Strong, is for Eli ah.
16. For Judah Maxfield (p. 1319), read Judy (for Judith).
17. Michael Briggs (p. 1368), is a misprint for Biggs.
18. Putman Co. (p. 1383), should be Putnam Co.
19. Keziah Strong Russ, (p. xi) second line from bottom should be Rust.

VIII. The following instances of misspelling occur.

1. In single instances Potomac and Becket (p. 1396), are spelled with two t's as also is Cincinnati (pp. 464, and 468, &c.) in a few instances. Let no one, however, think that Duchess Co., N. Y., which is, as universally as it is absurdly, misspelled with a t, is spelled wrongly, when, as always in this book, it is spelled without it.
2. Susannah (p. 1437), and Sarah (p. 756), are each found once without their final h as Whittlesey is also once (p. 247), without its proper initial aspira te.
3. Beebe is wrongly spelled on p. 327, Bebee.
4. Brigden, as it occurs once on p. 384, should be Brigdon.
5. Munson, Mass., as found on p. 376, should be Monson.
6. For Ferndon in one instance on p. 365, read Ferdon.
7. The following corrections also should be made: Ozias, for Oziah, p. 433; Arethusa for Arathusa, p. 450; Estella, for Estilla, p. 460; Waitstill for Waitskill, p. 550; and Thankful for Thankkul, p. 553.
8. Hayer in the name of Catharine Hayer Strong p. (674), should be Heyer.
9. For Rehobeth (p. 952) read Rehoboth and for Woodword on same page, Woodward, as also for Catherine, Catharine.
10. Robins (p. 990), should be of course Robbins.
11. Calumbia College (p. 1131) is as plainly also for Columbia, etc.
12. Westminster (p. 1278), and Leominster (p. 1343), are each misspelled in a single instance with an additional i.
13. Hinsburgh, Vt. (p. 1481) should be Hinesburgh.

IX. Of errors in dates there are a few:

1. Edward Hale Hunt (p. 337), d. in 1866, not 1856.
2. On page 367, in 19th line from top of page, Jan. 1717, the date of President Dwight's death, should be 1817.
3. Clarissa Fletcher (p. 460), was b. in 1848, not 1843.
4. Joseph Strong (p. 671) was grad. at Yale in 1788, not 1798.
5. Rev. Paschal N. Strong (p. 672) was m. in 1816, not 1817, and his son, Paschal was b. June 30, not 20, 1820.
6. Emma Rodelia Strong, No. 1659 (p. 896) was b. Dec. 16, not 15.
7. Lavinia Strong (p. 1099), was b. Sept. 19, not 18.
8. Arvine Reed Allen (p. 1109), was b. in 1829, not 1839.
9. Hannah Searle (p. 1143), was b. in 1738, instead of 1838.
10. The date of birth of Helen L. Hosmer (p. 1175), was July 4, not 3, 1842.
11. Atossa Edwards (p. 1345), d. in 1863, not 1263.
12. The date of birth of Cornelia Billings (p. 1374), should be 1777, and not 1787.
13. The date of birth of Newton M. Hulbert (p. 1400), should be simply Feb. and not Feb. 1, 1853.
14. The date of marriage of Samuel Clark was May 16, not 15, 1670.
15. The date of Hannah Bartlett's death (p. 1442) was 1714, not 1718.

X. A few contractions are not made in their usual form. Col. occurs twice (p. 369) for coll. for college. Theo. Sem., is found also a few times for Theol., &c. After Baltimore the proper designation of the state, Md., has been once doctored into M. D.

XI. There are some omissions of words and of parts of words and of punctuation points determinative of the sense.

1. Resi on p. 359, in top line should be residence.

2. Ged, on p. 549, 9th line from the bottom of page, is for aged.

3. On p. 886 in 4th line from the bottom of the page a bracket is wanting before words, " a hotel-keeper at Pine Hills"—making the record as it is now appear confused.

4. On p. 1242, there should be a colon after the name of Flavilla Ballard, making Rev. Noble D. Strong, and not herself, a teacher at Auburn, N. Y.

5. On p. 1345, in bottom line, a dash is needed after words Mary Fowler, to make the sense complete.

6. On p. 1366, by omission of the hyphen after Feb. 16, 1813, Samuel Good is wrongly made the resident of Union, Ind., instead of Irenius Good.

7. On p. 1421, the important letter m. is left out between Nathaniel Edwards and Hepzibah Janes.

8. On p. 1444, the words, By second husband, should be placed over the name of Dea. Samuel Lyman No. 26946–8.

XII. For rectification of the sense of various passages:

1. On p. 352 in 14th line from top, for word, and, between words genealogy, and part of his family, read of.

2. On p. 689, in 8th line from top, read instead of, in the old homestead, on, &c.

3. On p. 694, no comma should be found between words Thousand and Isles.

4. On p. 700, in fifth line from top expunge the words b. July, after the name of Selah W. Strong.

5. On p. 730, Jane and Elizabeth under No. 13673, should be one name without the copula between them.

XIII. In two instances an erroneous idea is conveyed by the wrong intermingling of Roman and Arabic figures:

1. On page xvii, under the name of Abigail Chauncey, Numbers 2 and 3, Rev. Nathaniel Chauncey and Sarah Chauncey, now wrongly italicised, should be marked II, and III; and so be placed in the third generation, instead of, as now in the fourth.

2. On page 698 the children of Nathaniel B. Blunt, Nos. 13085–6–7 should be numbered in same manner with the first two as Nos. (3), (4), (5), instead of as now iii, iv, v.

XIV. There are quite a number of annoying instances of hyphens omitted as well as also of those wrongly placed, serving to mar the beauty of the text and sometimes that of its sense. In some cases likewise commas too few, or commas too many will be found by eyes disposed to search for what blemishes they can find.

That more and worse mistakes than those above cited will be discovered in subsequent readings of the text is quite possible. Those who find any important errors will confer a favor by giving information of them.

A Family Gathering.

The author proposes that there shall be a grand gathering of all the Strongs in their various tribes and families, at Northampton, Mass., on the last Wednesday of August, 1872, for the purpose of exchanging friendly greetings and forming mutual acquaintanceship. Such a meeting should continue for two or more happy days and abound in such ceremonial and festive appointments as will best give vent to the general enthusiasm of the occasion. A monument should be also then and there planned, to be erected, within the following year, to the memory of the noble founder of the Strong Family in America.

May each succeeding generation of the family have, as long as the sun shines, a similar assemblage of their growing numbers in the same place, as often as every twenty-five years, with all generous good cheer. And, within less than a hundred years, may another and larger History of the Family be prepared with labor-loving zeal, that shall so, in its ampler proportions, overtop and outreach the dimensions of these volumes, that they shall appear to be, in comparison with it, but a little representation of what the Strongs were in the opening years of their name and fame upon this continent.
